Directions (Questions 1-5): Study the passages below to answer the questions that follow each passage.

There was once a poor man who earned just a bare living for himself and his family. All day long he sang and passed time cheerfully, while his rich neighbours were busy and anxious about their riches and never sang. They wondered at the poor man's joy and even complained that with his singing, he would not let them sleep. One of them, a very wealthy man said, "I will stop him being so cheerful and singing all the time." He went to the poor man's house while he was away and threw a bag of money into his room. When the poor man came home, he was very happy at first and cheerfully hid the bag of money. Soon, however, he began to fear it might be stolen or he might be accused of having stolen it, and he ceased to be cheerful and to sing. After a time, the rich man asked him, what made him so thin and sad. At first he did not dare to say but when the rich man told him that he knew his secret, he cried out, 'Take back your money, then I shall be happy and free from care and shall sing as I used to".
